An electronic version of this paper is available on the ICI's member website, members.ici.org. This paper was developed to respond to the regulatory and practical implications of the ever increasing use of electronic communications by investment advisers and investment companies. In particular, the paper is designed to provide funds and their advisers with issues and factors to consider with regard to the creation and maintenance of electronic records - regardless of the electronic media used (e.g., e-mail, instant messaging, VOIP). It also discusses issues to consider in connection with the production of electronic records in SEC inspections and enforcement proceedings and civil litigation. Finally, the paper includes a detailed discussion of, and guidance relating to, establishing and implementing an effective records management program. The work on this paper was guided by a member working group and coordinated by an ICI staff team from the Institute's operations, law, and information technology groups. While many individuals provided invaluable assistance to this project, the Institute is particularly grateful and would like to extend its appreciation to the following individuals, who formed our working group for this project: Edward Berry, Morgan Stanley Martin Byrne, Merrill Lynch Investment Managers Lori Callahan, Deutsche Scudder Investments, Inc. Mary L. Cecola, Deutsche Scudder Investments, Inc. Sarah McCafferty, T. Rowe Price Associates, Inc. Janet D. Olsen, Artisan Partners Limited Partnership Pauline C. Scalvino, The Vanguard Group Ra'ad Siraj, Eaton Vance Management Catharine C. Young, Enterprise Group of Funds We would also like to thank the law firm of Stradley Ronon Stevens and Young, LLP, and particularly Lawrence P. Stadulis and Peter M. Hong, for their able research and writing. We hope you find this paper useful.
