Re: Revenue Procedure 2002-10

Dear Ms. Gold:

On behalf of its investment company members, the Investment Company Institute¹ wishes to express the industry's concern with the June 1 deadline set forth in Revenue Procedure 2002-10 for the continued use of existing IRS model forms. For the reasons set forth below, we urge the IRS to extend this deadline to more closely comply with the time limits applicable to prototype plans pursuant to the revenue procedure.

As you know, the existing IRS model forms for establishing IRAs, simplified employee pensions (SEPs), and SIMPLE IRAs do not reflect the extensive changes to these vehicles enacted as part of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (EGTRRA).² In addition, substantial changes to these forms will be necessary upon finalization of the proposed regulations governing required minimum distributions (RMDs) under Code section 401(a)(9). According to Revenue Procedure 2002-10, these final regulations are expected "in the near future." In the meantime, changes to the IRS model forms cannot be finalized.

According to the revenue procedure, however, financial institutions, IRA owners, and employers must use the revised model forms for new IRAs, SEPs, and SIMPLE IRAs established after June 1, 2002.³ Our members report that this June 1 date most likely would not provide adequate time for printing, preparing, and distributing the new forms and accompanying materials⁴ to offices and representatives nationwide, even if the RMD regulations already had been issued. In addition, our members typically provide training to industry employees and representatives that will be interacting directly with the public concerning the establishment of these accounts. Such printing, preparation, distribution, and training generally require significant lead-time.

We also note that the regime established under the revenue procedure for prototype IRAs differs from that imposed on model IRAs in that prototypes with EGTRRA opinion letters will not need to be adopted until 180 days after the prototype sponsor receives its opinion letter. We therefore request that the June 1, 2002, deadline be replaced with a deadline that more closely follows that set for prototype plans in order to allow time for industry printing, preparation, distribution, and training in connection with the new forms and other related materials. Specifically, we ask that the deadline for use of the new forms be the later of: (1) December 31, 2002; or (2) 180 days after the IRS officially issues the revised model forms.

Please feel free to contact me at (202) 371-5432 if we can provide any further information concerning this issue.

Sincerely,

Kathy D. Ireland
Associate Counsel
